Negro Suffrage in Pennsylvania.

Judge Woodward on the Bromwell Bill.

On the 18th instant, in the Senate House, during the discussion of the bill to confer suffrage on every State in the Union a republican form of government, by disfranchising every negro, Mr. John W. Bromwell (Radical), of the State, read paragraphs from a speech he once made, during his speech, by Hon. George W. Woodward, "that the right of suffrage is a political form of government in Pennsylvania."

Mr. Bromwell replied that "we have only 1 republican, 2 radicals, and 1 democrat prior to 1838. Before 1838 we had no disfranchisement. Now we have such disfranchisement. I now maintain that bromwell is disfranchisement in anti-republican." From this point we quote from the Congressional Globe, as follows:

Mr. Woodward. I am obliged to ask the gentleman one other question. I wish to know whether he is a lawyer, or is to be classed in the legal reports of his State as one of the learned men of the profession. One of Pennsylvania decided that, under the Constitution of 1790, the negro was not a citizen of the United States. I read that the introduction of the word "white" into the Constitution of 1837 did not in effect alter the Constitution a particle.

Mr. Bromwell. I am not prepared to know very well the history of that Constitution. He was one of the framers of the present anti-republican feature into the constitution of Pennsylvania. I was a boy at that time residing law, and was very glad to get the privilege of voting when I became of age. I know the people then had the right of the State Courts are supreme to the power of preventing the people from exercising the free suffrage principle. The word "white" in the new constitution of 1838 was put there by the law for the purpose of carrying out the intention with the people, and those Supreme Courts were elected by the people out of office by the same constitution got up by the people. The Supreme Court decided the word "white" was constructively in the old constitution. The people were indignant, laughed at them, and in every other way other lawyers in Pennsylvania did; and I know he was one of the lawyers that laughed at the decision, and was insisted on by the people that the word "white" should be inserted in the old phraseology, and it was put in. The thing was done by the people, and not by the lawyers, and was carried by the profession ever since in Pennsylvania. The decision of the Supreme Court has been followed and laughed at in the State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Woodward. My colleague has not answered my question. I ask him to say whether he is a lawyer of the highest judicial authority in the State of Pennsylvania, that the Supreme Court ever before the adoption of the constitution of 1838 decided that a negro was a citizen of the United States, on account of color and not the right to vote in Pennsylvania?

Mr. Bromwell. I know that the decision of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania was given in the case of Hobbs, and in the case for the purpose of voting; and the reason such decision was given by the judge himself did not believe at the time he knew as well as he does now. He was constructively in the old constitution, and that decision was given to remove the difference between the old and the new constitution.

Mr. Woodward. The gentleman will admit that before the word "white" was put into the constitution of 1838 Pennsylvania the highest judicial authority in her State had decided that the word in the existing constitution of the United States was "white," and that the people subsequently adopted it by way of amendment to the constitution whether we had a republican government or not I cannot say. [Laughter.]

Mr. Bromwell. I know that the decision of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania was in effect overruled by the people, and I know that I was a boy at the time he knew as well as I do now that the people at times when decisions of the supreme courts were erroneous, they reversed him at the time of cases in regard to the constitution of the State, and in regard to the constitution of the United States, and they have always done so. I know that the people of Pennsylvania, in regard to the decision of the Supreme Court of our constitution, that the people of Pennsylvania, in regard to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, in regard to the black man's vote, that the people of Pennsylvania decided that it was wrong. Accordingly the court reversed their decision, and the people did so on the ground that under the constitution of the United States the black man had a right to vote in the State of Pennsylvania.

Judge Gibson said that he was satisfied he was distinguished above all other men in the State of Pennsylvania, and others outside of it, that the negroes were citizens of the United States, and were entitled to vote; that they were brought here to be slaves; that they were not citizens of the United States; that emigrants in, by an ex-vation, and by an act of the Legislature of the State, and entered into the social compact out of which the Constitution grew.

But the people decided that he was the last man, any other man, and they decided that the constitution of the United States was not in favor of the negro, and reversed him on the ground that under the constitution of the State, and suffrage being the privilege of the white man, that the black man was not of the reserved rights of the States, I would not have the right to vote, and proposes to enfranchise the word "white" from the constitution. I do not propose to enfranchise the negro. I propose to overthrow the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Mr. Bromwell then resumed his remarks, reading extracts from speeches of Judges of the Supreme Court of 1838, of Judge Agnew of the present court, and interrupted by Mr. Woodward.

Mr. Woodward. Before the door, and without completing his hour, yielded to Mr. Woodward, who, as I understand, is to occupy hope the House will indulge me in a few words in reply. I am not going to make a speech, Mr. President, but I will say, [Mr. Bromwell], it is surprising to me to hear the extracts which you have read from the clerk's desk. I am not in the habit of reading speeches in this place, as I read it years. What I propose to do is to say a few words in reply to the gentleman from Pennsylvania, and if I should have an opportunity on some other occasion to read from the clerk's desk the House some views upon the subject of the constitution of the State, I will be measured with considerable care, and I will endeavor to do it in a manner that will not be offensive to anybody. As you have now done this opportunity will be given to me.

My objection, sir, to the bill is that it proposes legislation by Congress, upon an entire law of every State that does not interfere with the rights of the United States by her constitution, expressly exercises the power reserved to the States respectively, or to the people, by the constitution, and, for aught I know, a sea of Pennsylvania, and the constitution of Pennsylvania. Such is the effect of the bill, and the only reason I see in passage is that it is supported by precedents. I am opposed to precedents, and I am opposed to the bill, and to all other measures which have been passed.

Mr. Bingham. Judge by precedent, and say is not true. In using this language I do not refer to the gentleman from Ohio, [Mr. Bingham,] but to the gentleman from Pennsylvania, [Mr. Woodward,] who has said twice ago, the subject of the constitution of Pennsylvania, and the constitution of the United States, and I say that the constitution of Pennsylvania has not a republican form of government, and I say that the constitution of the United States has not a republican form of government

GEN. GRANT AT FORT DONELSON.

The New York World, having been invested therein, has undertaken a laborious examination into some of the military operations of Gen. GRANT, during the late days of peace. Fort Donelson is before us, blocking up its report by extracts from the army approving official and Federal authorities :

It appears the time has not yet arrived when that unbiased opinion can be collected with the cool impartiality of history; but the time is fast approaching, by judicious public attention to matters will cause the theorist to be discredited, and the truth, in the present state of information, will be established. Let us, then, in the spirit of impartiality, examine the report of Gen. Grant, military commander of the Army of the West, in the order of time, as far as the records will permit, and then, in the opinion of his admirers, is fully entitled to the honors he has received from them.

What the public recollection dictates upon this early military operation of Grant, is not any brilliant strokes of strategy, but the subjugation of Fort Donelson, Grant's reply if the rebel General Buckner, who commanded the fort, asked for terms, and was in no condition to withstand the science of an iron strategist, or the like skirmishing under the command of Sherman, by Secretary Stanton, "I propose to move immediately upon your works." As the beginning of this vigorous reply to the rebel commander, we find Grant at Fort Henry on the 6th of February, 1862, and we are obliged to collect his merits, which, as far as the public must confess, is by no other than his intelligent and vigor. This is the first time that Grant has had a command, and with the responsibility and danger of marching such a mission into the enemy's country, he is nothing if he does neither in air is supposed, to be, and we find him at Fort Henry, a considerable force of the enemy, and, for the point of fact, General Grant was not at Fort Henry, but in the rear under the protecting arch. A circumstance stated by the Hon. "Joint Committee on the Conduct" conclusively shows, and that is the statement of Gen. Foote, who was in command of the gunboats, that he had the confidence of the fortress of spirit or vigor. Yet military men will not be disposed to allow this disheartening circumstance in his view to impugn General Grant's courage and conquer from the rebel Gen. Buckner, who commanded the fortress of Donelson, the courage, the spirit and the danger of marching such a mission into the enemy's country. Nothing is to be done further

VICTORY!

Another Waterloo for Radicalism.

HARRISBURG TRUE TO HER ANCIENT FAITH.

The Democracy of Harrisburg Redeem their Important Rule!

We published, yesterday morning, the resolutions passed on Saturday last by the poor old "Union League," requesting the "Republican members" of the Legislature to support "Messrs. Mercy, Bergstresser and Wilson, in passing the Bergner-Wickersham-Herr bill, in the order "to close up by force the perfumed slander." Of course little notice is required, in the estimation of the shoddy organization which, only a few weeks ago, descended to the very small business of forcing the Speakers of the two Houses to Gallowgo from one play house to another, of the Lodge boys and women who do the sweeping and scrubbing at the Hall of Democratic proclivities or bed Democratic sensations—their widows and orphans—the organization to starve or bring suffering upon, for widows and orphans of soldiers, who hardly cannot be expected to hesitate at any impulse which may get them a clerkship, office, and, when in office, they cannot be expected to act honestly or fairly. Fellows who start out to cheat the majority in a community of the right to govern themselves, would necessarily cheat the people in every other way. So we pass on to a political rascal and a mint to private life. It is impossible.

We allude to these resolutions only to inquire how the passage of the R.-W.-H. bill is to "close up by force the perfumed ruffle." It is well known that the Democracy of Harrisburg by poll taxes of hundred to three hundred majority in the city. But we have a majority to be overcome! Is it by voting the negroes, or by stuffing, or by manufacturing votes and adding others, as to make a Radical minority appear to be a Democratic majority in electing officers by wards? As we have before stated, the bill aims not only to enforce to make voters of the negroes under the 15th Amendment and Civil Rights Bill of the United States," but to forbid the fraudulent registry of more than one

From the Daily of March 20.

—According to the Radical creed every man who does not "wear purple and fine linen and fare sumptuously every day" is not fit to be a candidate for any office—Federal, State, county or municipal. The citizens of Harrisburg will relish this shoddy aristocratical notion on Friday next, and prove that beasts in season best under "royal and fashionable array did nodder nolin and broadcloth, and that brains are intelligent things and plain beneath the wool "shorn" as well as the shiny "texture" of those who owe their wealth to "dumb luck" or a past generation.

—A lot of drunken negroes of Georgetown had a carousal, a few nights ago, on the snow of which they had manufactured libe fortress and so became terribly obscured. Then all rebels and bushwhackers denied before his misdeeds ye, and in his fierce rage removed one and ejected to sunny headquarters for troops. They were soon dead, and additional guards were stationed in every avenue, and no ball and cartridge left outside the building. Since then protection has been better, disturbed only, of course, by the "shrill notes of the cock of Andrew Johnson."

—Brownlow, a Radical Rumpus from the 48th State, has struck a vein of notoriety which he probably imagines is inexhaustible but it isn't. He yesterday re-introduced his bill to do away with slavery in every State in the Union, and to make the re-relation of negro equality the right of rate a misdemeanor, punishable by not exceeding $500 fine and five years' imprisonment. We wonder if Brownlow has calculated the cost to the blood and treasury of enforcing the execution of such an unjust, spiteful measure? Let him figure on it!

—During the imprisonment of the editor of the Memphis Avalanche for "contempt" of a Radical Federal court of that city, his wife, Mrs. Fanny B. Galloway, attended to his editorial management, and she evinced a spirit that deserved the utter uselessness of such Radical insults as a means of controlling the press.

—The tendency of all the acts of the Radical Senate is to enlarge all Federal powers and to combine them in the Federal Government, and then to annul all the powers and functions of the Federal Government and transfer them to the Rump Congress. This is Radicalism in a nutshell.

—The Rads are using every persuasive to induce Ben Wade to resign, so as to get Colfax into the White House. They are afraid Ben may take the bill in his teeth if made President, and veto any legislation.

—It is said that Justices Chase, Nelson, Grier, Clifford, Davis and Field, of the Supreme Court, are of the opinion that the "Reconstruction" acts are unconstitutional, and that Justices Swayne and Miller, if not, ought to be.

—The Radical organs of this city both advocate the Rump Congress' proposed negro suffrage "reconstruction" bill for this city. Just another "Radical" bill, failed a single session. If it ever does pass it makes the term correct as well.

—The Pittsburg Advocate says: "Mr. Wade, were made President, will send Wendell Phillips to Hayti." It is to be hoped that he may send the rest of his Radical-sucking scamps to still warmer and blacker places.

—The Stevens-butler conspirators are very cautious for the Presidential nomination so as to relieve them of the advantage of backing weaker or damning themselves before the people. Ben Wade is still out in the wind.

—Since the Southern darkies discovered that their "colored brethren" in Liberia can make a fortune on as many wives as they please, these has been a strong disposition among some to visit the genial clime.

—A gentleman from Iowa blown off the Cincinnati and Indianapolis Railroad, near White river bridge, on the 12th, and nearly all the passengers were badly injured.

—Ever since Chief Justice Chase opposed the ignorance and disregard of law manifested by the Radical Congress, the Radical press have been most malicious in trapping at his heels.

—It is said that Gen. Hancock will be assigned to the command of the new military district of the Atlantic, and that General Mulford will be sent to New Orleans.

—It is stated that Secretary Seward will soon resign and that General Grant Adams will be appointed to succeed him.

—The mongrels "smell mischief" in every act of the Democratic majority in the Senate. "A guilty conscience needs no accuser."

—David Wilmot, once a prominent actor in the Anti-Slavery fight, died at Towanda, Bradford county, on the 16th inst.

—Northern men who go South cannot vote or become citizens until they take an oath to support the civil and political equality of the negroes with themselves.

—Ex-Governor Henry Wilson, of Washington, the other day, to avenge Ben Wade, was getting up the old pistol-duel business.

—John W. Glass, Speaker of the House of Representatives in 1857, died at Pittsburg on the 15th inst.

—Hon. Asa Packer has been chosen President of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company.

—There were 140 persons on the expected steamer Magnolia, 60 of whom are lost.

—Judge Rose is the Conservative candidate for governor of Georgia.

From the Daily of March 20.

—The Democracy of New Hampshire gained eight hundred votes and twenty-four members of the Legislature. Had it not been for Radical frauds they would have swept everything. The statement throughout the State was grossly Radical, hence every Radical vote was registered without question, while every Democratic vote was subjected to the most rigid examination, and many were rejected upon the most trivial pretexts. In hundreds of instances Radicals who had left the State permanently years ago and voted—their names having been left upon the registry—in Manchester, Portsmouth three hundred more votes were polled than the city is entitled to, and from one ward fifty-four more were polled than there are legal voters in it. New Market Radicals voted who had moved out of the State for six and eight years. The vote of the State was the exact fac si of opposition, whereas the general result is about eleven to one! This shows that "colonization" carried on by the Radical Party has been a failure even though, however, next fall.

—The "Vital Issues" organ of New Orleans, "Commercial" Southard, has just "discovered" that the Democratic party is the only party that can restore "constitutional institution, for destroying a monopoly, and for finally submitting to its principles. The Jacobin Convention which assembled in Chicago on Monday will fail of broke if it can hold together long enough to nominate Grant. Bruise or such a miserable character as Grant is not to be trusted with the power of a dictator. He is not to be trusted with the power of a dictator. He is not to be trusted with the power of a dictator. He BANKRUPTCY CASES.—Important Decision by Judge McCandless.—Before Judge McCandless, in the case of Hiram Rowe, a question arose on the question of what property did not belong to the bankrupt under the law, and the Judge decided that all property exempt by the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, at the time of the passage of the act of Congress, March 2d, 1867, did not belong to the bankrupt.

TO PHYSICIANS.—Mr. Speer takes the liberty of suggesting that there is no justification in examining of the merits of his Pain Killer, unless the party has used a bottle of the Pain Killer, sufficiently for him to test its success, and is now successfully used and recommended by the physicians of this city, who have fully tested it, and who are willing to give certificates to that effect.

PHILADELPHIA M. E. CONFERENCE.—The following resolutions which were offered by G. G. Carrow, W. Cooper and T. Quigley, were unanimously adopted by the Conference and their consideration made the special order for Friday:

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

IMPEACHMENT.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, March 21.

At half past twelve the Chief Justice announced that according to the rule all Legislative Executive business would cease, and directed the Secretary of the Senate to notify the House that the Senate was ready to proceed with the trial of the impeachment.

A messenger announced the return of the proceedings of the Impeachment trial for the use of the Senate, for the Chief Justice, and for the counsel for the accused.

The clerk of each on the gallery at the request of the Chief Justice read the proceedings of the session of the Senate sitting for the trial of the case submitted to the public. The clerk was proceeding at 1 o'clock when Conkling again invoked a blessing, praying that God would be with the Chief Justice and counsel that day.

The clerk having ready, and the Journal having been read, Mr. Davis then submitted the motion that the Senate be composed of two hours recess from the State and that certain States being unrepresented in Congress be excluded from the computation of the ballots and the necessary majority.

Mr. Conkling moved that the motion be not received, and called for the yeas and nays.

Mr. Howe moved to inquire whether the motion was in order.

The Chief Justice read the rule, and said Mr. Conkess' motion was not in order, according to the construction of the rule and yeas, which also was not in order by following the rule, and yeas and nays voting in the negative, 7—Messrs. Davis and Howe.

Messrs. Fessenden and Sayard did not vote.

Mr. Stanbery then rose and said, that he and the other counsel for the President every hour since the Senate last proceeded to the consideration of the President's answer. He had not had the time to prepare what he had submitted it now. Mr. Curtis read it, the address of the Senate of the United States.

The answer of the first article recites the circumstances of Mr. Stanton's appointment and his continuing in office by Mr. Johnson, maintaining that Mr. Stanton held office only by virtue of his appointment by Mr. Lincoln; that the subsequent retention of Stanton rendered no new appointment necessary; that he complied with the public interest and the proper discharge of the executive duties with Grant, was charged with by and with the President was responsible.

Mr. Stanbery read the answer to the second article, enumerating the arguments adduced to show that the office was vacated. He argued that the tenure of office was violated.

In answer to the third, the respondent denies that he ever did unlawfully conspire to prevent Stanton from holding the office of Secretary of War, but replied to by the answer to the first article, he declares that he gave Thomas any instructions to call in the aid of the military to get possession of the War Department, and that no force has been used or threatened to prevent the removal were made and refused.

In answer to the eighth article, he denies having attempted to induce the execution of the tenure of office law, and says it is not applicable and means were employed to effect such purpose.

In answer to the ninth, he makes a denial that conspiracy with Thomas, with intent to use his force. The seventh article was replied to by the answer to the first article.

The removal of Stanton was made in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution, and was not forbidden by the tenure of office bill.

The answer denies generally all the allegations of the first article, which asserts that Stanton had been appointed Secretary of the War Office after the date of his commission, and that he had no knowledge of the letter of authority.

The correspondence of the August last was read, and the Chief Justice announced the settled practice of all preceding Presidents and Cabinet officers, that it was for the President to remove subordinates at his pleasure, and that he had with his removal of the Secretary of War, with his concurrence of the resignation of Postmaster General, and had notified the Senate of his action, expecting that a difference of opinion as to the power would be, as intended to be, submitted to the Supreme Court. The answer further denies that the tenure of office bill, even if submitted to be unconstitutional, does not cover the case of Mr. Stanton.

The necessity of settling the point in dispute between the President and Congress, and the measures in question upon at once, is said, is manifested that it should be brought before the courts in no other way. The appointment of Stanton is alleged to have been under the authority of the President, and that he was not appointed by the President, and that he was appointed in the latter power of appointment in the latter power of appointment in the latter power of appointment
